YOUR WEEKEND STARTS NOW

Looking for some fun and unique things to do in Philly this weekend? We've got you covered.

ARTS & CULTURE

Artist Bash: Bring It!

Head to the Barnes Foundation this weekend to join in on another exciting edition of their Artist Bash. Guests can step into a photo booth and become part of a living portrait, join in on hip-hop fundamentals with high-energy performers, listen to incredible live poetry readings and performances, grab the mic themselves, get up and dance, plus much, much more. May 25, 8-11 p.m., Barnes Foundation, 2025 Benjamin Franklin Parkway, $10, barnesfoundation.org

Swing Into Spring

Head to Headhouse Square this weekend to enjoy a high-energy and exciting USO dance party underneath the historic Shambles with Society Hill Dance. The event will feature plenty of dancing, beginner's swing lessons, delicious food trucks, live performances and much more. The band will be playing plenty of blues, rock and roll and jazz with a fresh inventive spin, so dancing is not mandatory but you will be tempted. May 24, 4-8 p.m., Society Hill Dance Academy, 409 S. 2nd St., societyhilldance.com

FOOD & DRINKS

Rowhouse Grocery's Classes

Head down to South Philly hot spot Rowhouse Grocery to check out their impressive selection of produce, treats, homemade bites and more. Guests can also partake in their fun and informative classes. On May 24 at 6 p.m., join in on "VBQ: A Plant-Based Barbecue" class with Chef Nicole Younger of iHeart Chef NY Catering, and then be sure to get some goodie shopping done after the class ends. May 24, 6-8 p.m., Rowhouse Grocery, 1713 McKean St., $15-$25, rowhousegrocery.com

MUSIC

Billy Joel

The "Piano Man" himself is coming to the City of Brotherly Love this weekend and will be hitting the stage at Citizens Bank Park for one night only. Joel has an abundant amount of beloved hits that have remained timeless and wildly popular throughout the years including "We Didn't Start the Fire," "Uptown Girl," "Only the Good Die Young," "Vienna," "The Longest Time" and many, many more. May 24, 8 p.m., Citizens Bank Park, 1 Citizens Bank Way, $99-$149, mlb.com

Mac 'n Cheese Crawl

Think of this fun event as a bar crawl, but much, much cheesier. Fifteen top spots in Manayunk will be serving up their best and most unique versions of mac 'n' cheese for hungry guests to try. There will also be enticing drink specials to go along with the delicious samples, discount codes at select spots and so much more. The fun starts at Taqueria Feliz. May 25, noon-5 p.m., Taqueria Feliz, 4410 Main St., $10+, taqueriafeliz.com

SHOPPING

Kin Boutique

If you're heading down the shore this weekend, specifically the Atlantic City area, you're in for a treat. Kin Boutique will be opening up their pop-up shop this Memorial Day weekend inside of Stacey's Surf & Paddle in Margate. This new pop-up will feature one-pieces by Sidway Swim and Static Swimwear along with clothing, sunglasses, cover-ups, sandals and other beach essentials from a plethora of popular and unique brands. May 25-27, times vary, Stacey's Surf & Paddle, 9511 Amherst Ave., Margate City, NJ, free, staceyssurfcamp.com

The Who

The English rockers are hitting the stage in Philly this weekend and will be performing some of their smash-hit classic songs from their impressive repertoire including "Baba O'Riley," "My Generation," "Pinball Wizard," "Behind Blue Eyes" and many more. The Who will be in the City of Brotherly Love for one night only. May 25, 8 p.m., Citizens Bank Park, 1 Citizens Bank Way, $33-$438, mlb.com

FAMILY

Lego City: Report for Duty

Head to LEGOLAND Discovery Center Philadelphia this weekend with the whole family to partake in their Report For Duty campaign. The event on Saturday will feature building activities, interactive photos, heroic character experiences, giveaways, prizes, zip-lining and more. May 25, 10 a.m., LEGOLAND Discovery Center Philadelphia, 500 W. Germantown Pike, Plymouth Meeting, prices vary, philadelphia.legolanddiscoverycenter.com

Circus Family Festival

Head to the Please Touch Museum this Saturday and enjoy a fun-filled circus-themed day that is perfect for the whole family. There will be live performances, storytelling, a magician, obstacle courses, a parade, a chance to meet the Squiggles and much more. May 25, 9 a.m.-5 p.m., Please Touch Museum, 4231 Avenue of the Republic, pleasetouchmuseum.org

GOING OUT

Distillery Disco

Stateside Vodka Bar is throwing down this weekend and there will be plenty of dancing and vodka to go around. Try some of the hot spot's enticing cocktail options while dancing the night away, enjoy live music from DJ Ricky Lee, and much more every Friday night. Every Friday night, 9 p.m.-midnight, Stateside Vodka Bar, 1700 N. the latest celeb GOSSIP

Celebrity and entertainment news is always juicy. Even if you don't keep up with tabloids or regularly check gossip websites, everyone loves their daily dose of the tea. Metro has the scoop on the biggest scandals, shockers, shades and all-around crazy tidbits that have the celebrity world in a tizzy. Here are the biggest gossip stories of this week. MOLLY GIVEN

JOE JONAS SAYS "GOT" HELPED HIM MEET HIS NEW WIFE, SOPHIE TURNER

The singer captioned a recent Instagram photo thanking the HBO show: "When you realize Game Of Thrones is over vibes... Congratulations to everyone that worked on this incredible show! life changing television. I have you to thank for introducing me to the incredible Sophie Turner. Long live the Queen Of The North." Jonas initially met Turner through his interest in the show and direct-messaged her on social media. "We had a lot of mutual friends, and they'd been trying to introduce us for a long time," Turner told Harper's Bazaar. "We were following each other on Instagram and he direct-messaged me one fine day, out of the blue."

HALSEY PAYS A FAN'S SPEEDING TICKET

The "Bad at Love" songstress bailed out a fan who was served a speeding ticket while jamming out to Halsey's new single, "Nightmare." "Driving home from Penn State I got pulled over/given a ticket for the first time ever," the fan, who identified herself as Francesca on Twitter, wrote, according to People. "When asked why I was going 99 in a 70 I was ~dangerously~ close to admitting I was bangin out to @halsey's new song Nightmare." Halsey noticed the tweet and then tweeted out, "What's your Venmo? I'll pay your ticket. DRIVE SAFELY PLEASE!!!!"

DRAKE GETS CALLED OUT FOR HIS "DISRESPECTFUL" COURTSIDE BEHAVIOR

The "Nonstop" rapper was recently called out for "crossing boundaries" and acting "disrespectful" while courtside at a Raptors game. Drake is a huge Toronto Raptors fan and was acting very animated during their Eastern Conference game on Tuesday night against the Bucks. "I see it in some timeouts, but I don't know of any person that's attending the game that isn't a participant in the game a coach — I'm sorry, a player or a coach that has access to the court," Milwaukee Bucks head coach Mike Budenholzer said, according to People. "There's certainly no place for fans and, you know, whatever it is exactly that Drake is for the Toronto Raptors."

Honor our country's fallen service members this weekend in Philly. JOSEPH GIDIUNIS/ MOAR

A weekend to remember

Philly is honoring and remembering fallen service members this weekend with unique events and activities.

MOLLY GIVEN

Memorial Day weekend is here, and although it's not the official start of the summer season, it does seem to kick off all of the seasonal festivities. Aside from being an exciting launch to the sun-kissed season, this weekend is also a time to honor and remember people who have died while serving in the United States Armed Forces. The City of Brotherly Love is offering fun and exciting events plus touching acts of observance for the armed forces all weekend long, so if you can't head down to the beach this weekend and are kicking it in the city, you are in for a treat.

Memorial Day weekend at MOAR

According to the official release, the Museum of the American Revolution will pay tribute to the men and women who lost their lives in service to our country during the Revolutionary War and celebrate the freedoms they fought to secure for future generations from Saturday, May 25, to Monday, May 27. Philadelphians can post personal notes of gratitude to service members on a large panel in the museum's lobby and take a 30-minute walking tour to the Tomb of the Unknown Revolutionary War Soldier at Independence National Historical Park's Washington Square. Carnations will be available to each guest to lay on the tomb during the walking tour. In MOAR's Revolution Place, the whole family can learn what it takes to be a soldier by trying on reproduction Revolutionary-era uniforms, climbing inside a soldier's tent, signing an enlistment form and participating in special programs and craft activities all weekend long from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. There will also be 10-minute talks happening throughout the weekend beginning at 1:30 p.m. next to the gravestone of Captain Michael Cresap, which is on loan from the New-York Historical Society. Veterans and active or retired military will receive free admission to MOAR this weekend, courtesy of Comcast-NBCUniversal. May 25-27, times vary, Museum of the American Revolution, 101 S. 3rd St., amrevmuseum.org

Comcast-NBCUniversal Memorial Salute at The Mann

The Philly POPS will be remembering service members with a touching and impressive concert tribute this Saturday, May 25. The POPS will be led by Maestro Todd Ellison while performing a lineup of patriotic anthems, Great American Songbook classics and show tunes. Tickets are free to this exciting event; please note that particular blocks of seats will be provided for veterans, active military, Philadelphia police officers and firefighters. May 25, 7-8:30 p.m., The Mann Center for the Performing Arts, 5201 Parkside Ave., free, manncenter.org

Memorial Day Fireworks

Fireworks are always a plus to any evening, and celebrating Memorial Day just wouldn't seem right without them. If you want the best view in the house, head to the deck of the Battleship New Jersey on the Delaware River for front row seats. Guests who get there a little earlier can also enjoy face painting, games, snacks, a cash bar with beer, wine and soda and much more. The fun begins at 7 p.m. on May 25. For tickets, visit battleshipnewjersey.org or call 866-877-6262 ext. 108. May 25, 7 p.m., Battleship New Jersey, 100 Clinton St., Camden, NJ, $10, battleshipnewjersey.org

Memorial Day weekend at The National Constitution Center

The National Constitution Center will honor America's fallen military heroes over Memorial Day weekend with a series of fun, exciting and educational events. Guests can attend a patriotic concert featuring the Air National Guard Band, view special flag ceremonies, attend artifact spotlights, partake in a flag etiquette workshop and much more. Visitors also have access to the NCC's exhibits throughout the weekend. May 25-27, times vary, National Constitution Center, 525 Arch St., prices vary, constitutioncenter.org

A STUDY OF EMERGENCY CARE INVOLVING VICTIMS OF SEVERE BRAIN TRAUMA IS TO BE PERFORMED IN THIS AREA.

Temple University Hospital, Penn Presbyterian Medical Center, Cooper University Hospital, and Jefferson University Hospital are conducting a research study to learn if either of two strategies for monitoring and treating patients with severe traumatic brain injury in the intensive care unit (ICU) is more likely to help them get better. Both of these alternative strategies are used in standard care. It is unknown if one is more effective than the other. Because head injury is a life threatening condition requiring immediate treatment, some patients will be enrolled without consent if a family member or representative cannot be rapidly available. Before the study starts, we will consult with the community. We welcome your feedback and questions.

For more information or to decline participation in this study, please visit boost3trial.org or contact our study staff at 215-707-5483.

Cafe La Maude offers incredibly tasty treats. GETTY

Where to eat in Philadelphia this weekend

The best places for dining, drinking and enjoying. MOLLY GIVEN a.kitchen + bar

This Center City hotspot is stylish in every single way. From the sleek and chic atmosphere to their artisanally driven cuisine, everything just works. This popular eatery also not only offers a fantastic dinner menu and tasty bar options, but they are also open for breakfast, brunch, lunch and happy hour almost every day of the week.

Enticing menu options include fennel cured salmon, ricotta tartine, a lamb sandwich, bison tartare, a roasted black bass, a ribeye steak for two and much more. But that's not all, a.kitchen also recently announced that they will be featuring Sunday supper service starting this Sunday, May 26.

The service will feature a rotating menu of four delectable courses handpicked by a.kitchen. This Sunday's menu includes a grilled flatbread with pesto, rabbit-mushroom lasagna with a spring vegetable ragout, a seasonal dessert and much more. Be sure to pair the courses with a selection from a.kitchen's abundant and unique wine selection. 135 S 18th St., akitchenandbar.com

Xiandu Thai
Xiandu Thai exemplifies the word fusion. This popular eatery prides themselves on bringing together the bold flavors from Thai dishes and seamlessly fusing them with creative and unique pairings to provide the perfect ride for your taste buds. Xiandu is nestled right in Center City, and although this eatery is not huge in size it is in personality, taste and satisfaction. Menu options include Singapore laksa curry noodles, pho, pad si ew, an abundant amount of curry selections (panang, red, yellow, green, and massaman), pineapple duck, black pepper beef, a Hanoi pork chop and much more. This hotspot also has an enticing selection of small bites such as spring rolls, samosas, curry puffs and Asian tacos. Xiandu also features an impressive wine, beer and Asian-inspired cocktail list to choose from as well. 1119 Walnut St., xianduthai.com

Cafe La Maude
If you can't make it to Paris, don't sweat it, this Northern Liberties hotspot is bringing the City of Lights right to the City of Brotherly Love with appetizing menu options, a Parisian-inspired atmosphere and more. Besides the whole vibe of the place being absolutely adorable, the hotspot also features tasty treats that are almost too pretty to eat including gourmet macaroons, cookies, pastries and more. Cafe La Maude also features an absolutely scrumptious all-day brunch menu that really hits the spot any time of the day.

Dishes include pomme caramel or tiramisu pancakes, Gaufre chicken cordon bleu, an open-face Mediterranean burrito, poutine, gypsy eggs, sweet potato eggs Benedict and much more. The cafe serves an appetizing selection of drinks as well, including gourmet coffee beverages, hot chocolate, espressos, assorted juices and more. 816 N. 4th St., cafelamaude.com

Milkboy
Milkboy definitely has a laid-back vibe. If you want to kick back with your friends or family and just enjoy incredibly comforting food, unique drink options and still feel like you can let your hair down, Milkboy is the spot for you. There are two locations in the City of Brotherly Love and both offer their own vibe while still being similar with fun personalities and impressive menus. If you like to drink, try some of Milkboy's unique shot options such as their spicy back, chocolate pretzel or PB & J, plus check out their extensive beer, wine and cocktail list. If you come for the spirited fun you'll definitely be tempted by the food. Menu options include deviled eggs, mac 'n cheese, crabcake sliders, disco fries, BBQ pork sliders, their signature Hangover Burger and much, much more. As an extra bonus, Milkboy's South Street location also serves up Jim's Steaks (yes, you read the right). 1100 Chestnut St. and 401 South St., milkboyphilly.com

Kevin James. ALL PHOTOS GETTY IMAGES

Kevin James is in love

Kevin James gave Metro the scoop on his new stand-up tour, which hits the stage in AC this weekend.

MOLLY GIVEN

Kevin James has fallen in love with stand-up comedy again. The popular "funny man" has always been involved in comedy, but took a bit of a hiatus from performing onstage to focus more on his TV and movie game. Recently, however, the New York native has caught the stand-up bug again, and this time around, James says he is more ready, hungry and confident to pick up the microphone. James sat down with Metro to talk about his career, his motivations and dive into what you can expect from his stand-up tour in Atlantic City this weekend.

The "King of Queens" star has always been familiar with stand-up. "It's something that I've been doing all my life and all of my career," James said. But the actor let the art form take a back seat when he dove headfirst into numerous TV and film projects. "To be honest, there was a long time where there was a stretch of me doing TV and doing movies and jumping over to Vegas to do shows with Ray [Romano], kind of coasting on my stand-up. I haven't been working it as much. I used a lot of my material in my Netflix special but once that was done, it was done. I had never really spent and dedicated time to stand-up. It's something I really wanted to go back and do."

That day has finally come, and although this can't really be classified as a "comeback," it can be classified as a "comeup." James wanted his new show to truly be from his heart and soul, which is something that the actor admires in other comedians. "You can tell the difference with someone dabbling in stand-up and when someone's really in it. You see guys like Chris Rock and Dave Chapelle and even [Sebastian] Maniscalco and Brian Regan — these guys are really committed to stand-up. [They're] really funny guys and you can tell they are dedicated to it. I was not. I was just not doing it. So I've dedicated myself to doing it and I'm falling in love with it again."

Falling back in love with stand-up provided James with the outlet he needed to highlight his strengths and showcase his initial passion. Getting back on his A game didn't require him to change up his approach or hunt for new techniques; instead, the 54-year-old utilized the greatest asset he had garnered over the years — confidence. "It hasn't changed as far as my sense of humor and the way I approach a joke, but I think my confidence level [has]. When you stay in the pocket and you have more confidence in doing so, it really opens up the doors to do more stuff and to be funnier and expand and try different things onstage. Really a great way to write for me," says James.

"When you're confident and you know what you're doing as opposed to being nervous up there and just trying stuff and saying hopefully they like it, instead if you have faith and you believe in yourself and you think, they are going to enjoy this and have fun with it — you can take your time with it. You're not rushing jokes. You're really standing in the quiet moments and leading them through stories and down a path. That, to me, has changed the most, my confidence level being onstage and having fun with the audience and guiding them through this thing. You really are guiding an audience. Like, you know when to throw a punch here or to step back and let them relax for a second and then hit them hard again. Or you try to do it that way, anyway."

Kevin James will be performing at the Borgata Hotel Casino & Spa (1 Borgata Way, Atlantic City, NJ) this Sunday, May 26, at 7 p.m. For tickets, visit theborgata.com.

'American Taliban' John Walker Lindh released from US prison amid concerns

Secretary of State Mike Pompeo called the release "unexplainable and unconscionable."

U.S.-born John Walker Lindh was captured near Mazar-i-Sharif. REUTERS

John Walker Lindh, the American captured in Afghanistan in 2001 fighting for the Taliban, was freed early from federal prison on Thursday after serving 17 years, the Federal Bureau of Prisons said.

Lindh, who was 20 years old when he was captured, was released amid concerns about his rehabilitation.

Lindh, now 38, left the prison in Terre Haute, Indiana, Thursday morning. He had been sentenced to 20 years after pleading guilty in 2002 to charges of supplying services to the Taliban and carrying an explosive during the commission of a felony.

Lindh is among dozens of prisoners to be released during the next few years after being captured in Iraq and Afghanistan and convicted of terrorism-related crimes following the attacks on the U.S. by al Qaeda on Sept. 11, 2001.

His release brought objections from lawmakers who asked why Lindh was being freed early and what training parole officers had to spot radicalization and recidivism among former jihadists.

Leaked U.S. government documents published by Foreign Policy magazine show the federal government as recently as 2016 described Lindh as holding "extremist views."

U.S. Secretary of State Mike Pompeo called Lindh's release "unexplainable and unconscionable."

"There's something deeply troubling and wrong about it," he said on Fox News on Thursday.

"What is the current interagency policy, strategy, and process for ensuring that terrorist/extremist offenders successfully reintegrate into society?" asked U.S. Senators Richard Shelby and Margaret Hassan in a letter to the Federal Bureau of Prisons.

The bureau said in a statement that it does not share details of specific inmates' release plans but that it does have policies for monitoring parolees with ties to terrorism.

During his supervised release, Lindh won't be allowed to possess internet-capable device with out prior permission from his probation officer, and any device must be monitored continuously, according to court documents.

He is not allowed to hold a passport, communicate with known extremists or have any online communications in any language other than English unless otherwise approved. He also must undergo mental health counseling, court documents showed.

Lindh's parents, Marilyn Walker and Frank Lindh, did not respond to requests for comment and Lindh's lawyer, Bill Cummings, declined to comment.

U.S.-born Lindh converted from Catholicism to Islam as a teenager. At his sentencing in 2002, he said he traveled to Yemen to learn Arabic and then to Pakistan to study Islam.

Lindh said he volunteered as a soldier with the Taliban, the radical Sunni Muslim group that ruled most of Afghanistan from 1996 to 2001, to help fellow Muslims in their struggle or "jihad." He said he had no intention "to fight against America" and never understood jihad to mean anti-Americanism.

Lindh told the court he condemned "terrorism on every level" and attacks by al Qaeda leader Osama bin Laden were "completely against Islam."

But a January 2017 report by the government's National Counterterrorism Center, published by Foreign Policy, said that, as of May 2016, Lindh "continued to advocate for global jihad and to write and translate violent extremist texts." REUTERS

Violent weather kills 3 in Missouri, floods rivers in OK

Forecasters are calling for several additional inches of rain.

A transformer lays fallen on top of a home following a tornado touchdown overnight in Jefferson City, Missouri. REUTERS

Damage is seen on a street after a tornado in Jefferson City, Missouri. TYLER THOMPSON/VIA REUTERS

A relentless barrage of violent weather in the central United States left three people dead on Thursday, local media said, as tornadoes raked across southwest Missouri and devastated the state capital, and heavy rain flooded rivers in Oklahoma.

The reported casualties from the tornadoes, which struck Missouri in the middle of the night, brought the week's weather-related death toll in the region to at least seven, as forecasters said the rain and threat of damaging winds were expected to continue.

"It looks to stay quite wet over the next week across the central portion of the country," said meteorologist Mark Chenard of the National Weather Service (NWS) Weather Prediction Center in College Park, Maryland.

A system of showers stretching from the Texas Panhandle and western Oklahoma north to Nebraska were to bring flooding risks on Thursday, Chenard said. A somewhat diminished threat of tornadoes will persist from the Texas Panhandle through Kansas, he added.

The weather service's St. Louis office confirmed tornadoes touched down near Joplin, Missouri, late Wednesday, and local media, including the Joplin Globe, reported at least three dead.

In Jefferson City, the state capital, officials said a "massive" twister caused widespread damage to buildings, trees, cars and power lines, but no fatalities.

"Many, many buildings have significant damage, and there's a lot of them that just have small damage as well, so it's just very widespread," Jefferson City Mayor Carrie Tergin told CNN.

Missouri Gov. Mark Parson said at least 20 people were treated at hospitals for injuries, most of them released shortly thereafter, and praised the city's tornado warning system.

"That's why we didn't have any fatalities in Jefferson City last night, why we didn't have more injuries," Parson said on CNN.

Weather forecasters expect the region to get another 2 inches of rain through Friday.

President Donald Trump said his heart went out to the people of Missouri as they assessed the damage. "You are strong and resilient, and we are here to assist," he wrote on Twitter.

Trump also urged Oklahomans to stay safe and listen to the warnings of local officials. "We are with you!" he tweeted.

THE FOREMAN FORECAST: WHAT HAVE YOU DONE?

ANALYSIS

GETTY IMAGES

The Democrats controlling the U.S. House of Representatives "literally haven't gotten anything done" since Speaker Nancy Pelosi took the gavel. Nada. Zippo. Goose egg.

This was the gleeful announcement from White House Press Secretary Sarah Sanders as she pressed President Trump's case that Democratic lawmakers are wasting time and tax money investigating him. Trump himself tweeted, "Zero is getting done … it is not possible for [Congress] to investigate and legislate at the same time."

These are nice, strong, clear statements sure to delight the Trump base. They are also patently, provably not true. This is fake news being pushed by a White House that screams endlessly that such falsehoods are the damnation of America.

Let's review the facts: Under Dem control since just January, the House has passed 235 pieces of legislation. Two hundred thirty-five! Sure, some of them were about little things, like naming post offices. But the Dems also tackled some major issues, approving measures to address ethics, campaign finances, government reforms, discrimination, gun safety, and global warming.

Why haven't you seen the result of all this? Look at that list. Many of these are items the president's party — the Republicans — don't want. So when many of these measures reached the Republican-controlled Senate, they were taken into backrooms and slowly smothered … presumably under a pillow embroidered with the words "Trump forever" or perhaps a "MAGA" fleece blanket.

Despite that, it is worth noting that 17 items approved by the Dems in the House were also passed by the Senate Republicans, including legislation to end the government shutdown, to address a drought out West, and to deal with conservation issues. (And by the way, history has shown Congress can quite easily handle day-to-day matters while investigating presidents.)

Now, I am not taking sides here. I'm paid to not care which party gets credit or blame for anything. But I'm also paid to follow the facts, and they say Team Trump is dead wrong on this matter. Democrats may not be taking the actions Trump wants. They may be pursuing investigations he loathes.

But they are decidedly doing things, including things which could be his undoing. And that's probably what all the White House griping is really about.

Stanley Cup Final betting preview

Recent history suggests that Boston will struggle with a long layoff.

MATT BURKE

Matt Burke is a veteran sports journalist and the Founder and Editor in Chief of MetroBet.

GETTY IMAGES

The Boston Bruins are the early favorite to take home the Stanley Cup as they are -155 to win the series at DraftKings Sportsbook, while the St. Louis Blues sit at +130.

The Blues are getting a lot of the smart money, however, as the Bruins will have been off for 10 days when the series finally starts on Memorial Day Monday night. Rest often equals rust in pro hockey, as the team with more rest has lost the last six Stanley Cup Finals.

Just last year, the Vegas Golden Knights were off for a full week before they met the Washington Capitals in the Cup Final and they wound up falling in five games.

Both goaltenders in this series, Boston's Tukka Rask and St. Louis' Jordan Binnington, have been absolutely locked in during the postseason. Rask has a phenomenal 1.84 Goals Against Average this postseason and hasn't allowed more than three goals in a game since April 17.

Binnington, meanwhile, has had a couple of clunkers recently as he allowed five goals to the Sharks in Game 1 of the Western Conference Final and five goals again in Game 3 of that series. But when these playoff series' have reached their boiling point, Binnington has come up big in the clutch. He gave up just two goals in the Blues' clinching Game 6 win over Winnipeg in Round 1, allowed just one goal in 85 minutes in St. Louis' epic double-OT Game 7 win over Dallas in Round 2, and was again tremendous in Game 6 against the Sharks this past series – allowing just one goal.

According to DraftKings, 66 percent of the money so far is coming in on the Bruins but 53 percent of the actual bets are coming in on the Blues. To bet on the Stanley Cup Final between Boston and St. Louis and get a deposit match up to $200 (for every $10 a user bets, they'll receive $1 back) from DraftKings Sportsbook through MetroBet, go to tinyurl.com/y5fdl9lt

If you bet $20 on the Bruins to win the series at -155 at DraftKings Sportsbook, you would receive a payout of $32.90. If you bet $20 on the Blues to win the series at +130 the payout would be $46.00.

Bryce bombs

DraftKings Sportsbook has several intriguing Memorial Day weekend odds boosts including a home run prop on Bryce Harper for Friday night against Milwaukee, as well as odds boosts on the French Open and the aforementioned Stanley Cup Final, which you can check out at tinyurl.com/y5fdl9lt

Phillies, MLB betting previews

Phillies at Brewers

Friday night's series opener between the Phillies and Brewers promises to be high-scoring as Jerad Eickhoff (2-2, 3.23 ERA) takes the hill against Chase Anderson (2-0, 2.66 ERA) at Miller Park.

Eickhoff was roughed up by this Brewers squad on May 14, allowing five runs on eight hits and a pair of walks. Two of those hits were home runs by outfielder Ryan Braun and catcher Yasmani Grandal, respectively. That continued a positive trend for both sluggers in May, as Braun's OPS for the month is 1.126, while Grandal's is .838. The Phillies bullpen, 22nd in batting average against at .252, could spring a leak or two if asked to do yeoman's work in this one.

Anderson was wild in his first start since hitting the IL with a finger laceration, allowing four walks in four innings of work on May 18. The swing man's SO/W ratio on the season is an underwhelming 1.92. This plays right into the Phillies' hands, as they're fifth in walks drawn this year at 199. Anderson has struggled against a few of these Philadelphia hitters, in particular third baseman Maikel Franco, who has five hits (including three home runs) in just 10 career at-bats against the native Texan. Outfielder Odubel Herrera is 5-for-12 lifetime against Anderson, while shortstop Jean Segura is 4-for-12.

The play: Phillies vs. Brewers Over and Cardinals moneyline Parlay

Braves at Cardinals

The Cardinals are a confident selection on Friday as they host the Braves at Busch Stadium.

Mike Foltynewicz (0-3, 6.91 ERA) was Atlanta's ace last year but has struggled mightily since coming off the IL on April 27. He's surrendered 10 home runs in just five outings this season, and his team has lost every game he's started. Cardinal hitters with solid stats against Foltynewicz include catcher Yadier Molina (1.051 OPS in 12 at-bats), second baseman Kolten Wong (5-for-9, one home run, four RBI), and shortstop Paul DeJong (3-for-7, one home run and three RBI).

Rendon a good fit for Phillies?

The Nationals' star third baseman could be on his way out this summer.

JOE PANTORNO
joseph.pantorno@metro.us

Anthony Rendon's days with the Nationals look to be coming to an end. GETTY IMAGES

The nosedive experienced by the Washington Nationals might be the gain of the rest of Major League Baseball.

Even, possibly, the Philadelphia Phillies.

Following a series loss to the struggling New York Mets, the Nationals are rooted to the fourth-place position in the National League East, closer to the NL-worst Marlins than first place.

Not exactly the response the organization was hoping for when Bryce Harper skipped town to join the Phillies.

It seems as though the Nationals' window for a championship is officially closed now with only four trips to the NLDS since 2012 to show for it.

A fire sale seems like the next course of action for the franchise with big names possibly on the market like annual Cy Young favorite Max Scherzer.

While Scherzer's departure may be more of a pipe dream for teams desperate to find pitching help, a far more tangible trade target will be third baseman, Anthony Rendon.

The 28-year-old is in the final year of his deal where he's owed $18.8 million this season. That's quite a bargain considering he's one of the top third basemen in the game.

Over his past three seasons, Rendon is batting .292 while averaging 23 home runs and 92 RBI. He eclipsed the .300 in each of the past two seasons and his well on his way to do it again this year, slashing .325/.423/.675 over his first 35 games.

With the Nationals going nowhere and Rendon set to ask for a big-time contract this offseason, a trade is growing more and more likely with every loss.

And his bat could do wonders even as a rental for the Phillies this summer.

Philadelphia has been getting limited production from the third base position which has been one of the minuscule offensive question marks within an offense that is averaging almost five runs per game.

Maikel Franco is struggling to get to the .230 line this season as he nears the 50-game mark as his inconsistencies continue. After batting .274 last season to rebound from a .230 2017 campaign, Franco is batting just .224 this year.

He's had to shoulder most of the third-base duties seeing as utility infielders Scott Kingery and Phil Gosselin are also splitting time providing depth at second base and shortstop.

The price to acquire Rendon would likely be high, but snagging him this summer would give the Phillies one of the most imposing lineups in all of baseball. Rendon would settle in nicely in the middle of a well-protected lineup that already boasts Harper, JT Realmuto, and Rhys Hoskins.

If the Phillies can't find pitching depth, either in the starting rotation or the bullpen, then Rendon would help them simply outscore their opponents.

The way the NL East is shaping up though, it would further aid the Phillies in running away with another division crown.

Clowney to Eagles? Don't count on it

A rift is growing in Houston between the Texans and their star defensive end.

JOE PANTORNO
joseph.pantorno@metro.us

No matter what time of year, there is always drama brewing in the NFL.

Trade rumors continue to swirl around the Houston Texans and their star defensive end Jadeveon Clowney as the former No. 1 pick was a no-show at OTAs.

His absence looks to be stemming from a stalled contract negotiation. The Texans placed their $15.9 million franchise tag on the 26-year-old back in March with management making it clear that they wanted to hammer out a new, long-term contract.

It hasn't come yet.

Unlike Le'Veon Bell, Clowney won't sit out the season if he doesn't receive a new deal. However, it will only damage the relationship between player and organization.

His absence from OTAs has provided some indication that there could be a trade on the horizon. In a report on Thursday, the Athletic's Aaron Reiss stated that Texans GM Brian Gaine "must consider whether to seek a trade," if Clowney's contract demands are too high.

The South Carolina product is looking for a bigger contract after hitting his stride over the past two seasons. He recorded a combined 18.5 sacks with three forced fumbles and six fumble recoveries since 2017.

Jadeveon Clowney and the Texans could be on the outs. GETTY IMAGES

One of the potential trade targets that Reiss lists is the Philadelphia Eagles, though he admitted that the chances are low.

It stems from the fact that general manager Howie Roseman would have to free up enough cap space to sign Clowney to the big extension he's looking for.

Philadelphia's priority will be signing franchise quarterback Carson Wentz to a major deal. That means there likely won't be the funds to throw monster money at Clowney.

Reiss, however, notes that Roseman "is not afraid to take big swings," and could explore creating a vaunted defensive line — which is a "premium position."

Bringing on Clowney to join Fletcher Cox and Derek Barnett would make the Eagles' pass rush one of the more feared units in the entire NFL. But it might be nothing more than a pipe dream.
